

MAYSVILLE LEDGER

FIFTH YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, JANUARY 27, 1896.

ONE CENT.

CIRCULATION
LARGEST IN THE CITY.

Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising "notions" free any more than a merchant can lose over his counter free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade, and advertisements should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

The Continued Calls

upon The Ledger for free notices have become so burdensome that we are forced to publish the following terms:

For Notices of Meetings,

excursions, fairs, or other public entertainments where a fee is charged, and for ordinary notices, readmissions of request, etc., The Ledger will charge FIVE CENTS a line, and hereafter this will be the invariable rule. This however, does not include

Avoidance of Disputes.

Misunderstandings are unpleasant. The rate for the first line in this paper is 10 cents a line for the first insertion and 5 cents a line for subsequent insertions. A customer orders a five-line notice inserted in the paper. It is not when he calls to see the paper, but he says to the bookkeeper, "But he forgot all about it. The notice says for two months—30 days—the bill is $10.00. When he finds it out there is a "kick" and a controversy, followed probably by an angry letter, and to obviate this trouble, no "bill" notices will be accepted hereafter. Let's have a definite agreement at the outset and the termination will be pleasant all around.

All matter for publication must be handed in before 9 o'clock in the morning of each day.

It is also a settled fact that Mayville will have a fair this year, and it will be a hummer; too.

HELPING THE FIREMEN.

Free Liberal Citizens Who Have Given Substantial Aid.

Friday last The Ledger called attention to the fact that the Washington Fire Company was unable to meet the semi-annual interest due in February on $10,000 worth of bonds issued to build the Opera house.

On Saturday two liberal citizens made substantial gifts to the Company, and their names are given here without their knowledge, for neither care to have their many benefactions made public.

Mr. Lissant Cox, who held $500 of the bonds, at once upon learning the status of affairs, sent word to the Finance Committee that he would donate his bonds and interest to the Company—an absolute present of $515.

Mr. Horatio Picklin, who holds $2,300 of the bonds, has surrendered the February interest coupons, thus making the Company a gift of $66; and he is willing to enter into any further arrangement for the relief of the firemen.

The income from the Opera house for the past five years has not been sufficient to meet the interest on the bonds.

The salary of $400 received from the city is exhausted in the outrageous insurance charged on the building—$325 a year—and the city license of $100.

By the terms of the contract with the bondholders the Company is required to carry $10,000 insurance, and it does look like the insurance companies ought to have some consideration for the organization that works mainly for their benefit. To the contrary, however, these rapacious concerns have raised the rates up to the highest notch, and persistently keep them there.

In the meantime, if any of the remaining bondholders or citizens who are not bondholders, wish to follow the splendid example set by Mr. Cox and Mr. Picklin, let them call on M. C. Russell, Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowley of Hollands, Va., has to say below, will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had a gripe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to get to work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by J. Jas. Wood, Druggist.

HON. ROBERT A. COCHRAN.

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE BY A FORMER MAYSVILLIAN.

Mr. Thomas M. Green Touches Briefly on His Life "From the Cradle to the Grave."

In recent years Mayville has had no more useful or valuable citizen than Robert A. Cochran, who has been taken from the community which held him in such high esteem.

That he was born in Crawford county, Pa., January 27th, 1832; that his father was John Cochran and his mother Jane Duffield; that his paternal grandfather was a soldier in the Revolution; that on the father's side he was of the Scotch-Irish race, and on his mother's of Anglo-Irish descent; that both families held the Calvinistic faith; that his father died when he was 7 years old, and that he was reared on a farm by a widowed mother; that his early educational opportunity was such as usually fell to a country boy in one of the Northern-Central states at that time; that he taught a country school in his native state several years before coming to Kentucky; and that his arrival in Mason county in 1844 was in the same capacity—all this has been published.

The record differs in no material particular from the records of many of the men, who, born, of reputable parentage in moderate circumstances, trained to habits of industry and economy in boyhood, were aided by these very facts in their steady progress to prosperity, and helped to make our state and country what they are.

Of this class of men he was an excellent type.

When he first came among the Kentucky people of Mason county it was plain to all of them that he was imbued with principles of honor; that he was a man of integrity, not alone in the sense which leads men to scrupulously meet their pecuniary obligations, but in that higher and broader sense which does justice to one's fellow-men and stands up for the truth.

From the beginning his associations were always with the better class of our people;—by which is not at all meant the richest,—for there is a distinction with a difference between them.

His bearing was courteous, not favoring; his conduct was always that of a self-respecting, independent, manly man.

He at once won and held the friendship of such men as John A. McClung, who became his instructor in law; of the late Harrison Taylor; of William H. Wade, and of others of like position and character; of itself complimentary to any man.

Becoming the Deputy in the office of the Clerk of the County and Circuit Courts, it gave him opportunities of acquaintance with the great body of the country people and with the business men of both county and city.

That they all respected him goes without saying; it would have been impossible for him to have respected one who was always so true to himself, and, of necessity, equally so to others.

But, at that period of his life, he had personal and facial qualities which made him attractive and popular;—men liked him as well as confided in him.

He was the first Clerk of the Mason County Court elected by the people, and was three times re-elected. Of itself that would be slight evidence of the high estimation in which he was held; but it is due to him to say, and it is much to say, that his election was never due to the use of unworthy means nor to influences which degrade our fellowman.

He desired a re-election for a fifth term, and it is known that his wishes would have been easily gratified had he consented to abandon his political associates, in the change which had taken place; it was characteristic of the man that he preferred defeat rather than deviate from the path which his convictions instructed him was that of rectitude.

It is the concurrent testimony of all that the county never had a more faithful, a more upright nor a more competent official;—never one who devoted himself more scrupulously to the duties of his need a great deal of jewelry, but what he does wear ought to be good. It is the most extravagant sort of economy to pay too little for such things. If a man buys good buttons and studs the question is settled for sometime to come.

Good things not only last longer, but they look better. Most all jewelry is worn largely for ornament. To be sure it has its uses, and very necessary ones, but the ornamental feature is a strong one.

I will not handle anything that isn't good. I have several grades, of course,—some better than others, but all are to be depended upon.
J. BALLENGER, Mayville, Ky.

position and to the interests of his constituents.

Since then—since 1866—Mr. Cochran's career was that of a lawyer, of a director in financial institutions, President of the Gas Company, Manager of the Cotton Mill, etc., in which capacities he proved himself a sensible, discreet, energetic man of business.

But in the midst of this engrossment in private interests, in the manage of capital to increase his own means, and that of others, he still found time to serve the public. I allude particularly to his long, faithful and intelligent service as a member of the School Board of Mayville, in which, while others did their part, he unquestionably did all of his, did it well, did it energetically and with heartiness,—for both mind and heart were enlisted in the cause of public education.

His course as President of the City Council for eight years was marked by rare sagacity and an unselfish devotion to the public welfare, the results of which are known and need not be reiterated.

Those who served with him in the Kentucky Legislature, wherever may have been their own partisan affiliations, bear cordial testimony that, while one of the most modest, he was at the same time the most useful and valuable, and, though of the minority, one of the most influential of its members.

During his life of more than fifty years in Mason county Mr. Cochran had become thoroughly Kentuckianized.

He was not of showy talents; he was one of good, hard, practical sense.

He was a successful man of business in a stirring Kentucky town, but was no money grabber; he was liberal, generous, untempered, public spirited as a man and citizen, doing his whole part and contributing more than his share in the advancement of every good work.

His example and his experience were always on the side of morality, of decency, of cleanly living, and of religion. The death of such a man is always a loss, not only to his family and friends and to the community in which he had lived, but to his state and country.

Typoid fever, pneumonia and other forms of disease are very prevalent throughout the county.

Mr. Charles Downing, mention of whose serious illness has appeared in The Ledger, was thought to have been in a critical condition Friday night with chances against his recovery.

"I have been a victim to terrible headaches," writes C. F. Newman, Dug Spur, Va., "and have never found anything to relieve them so quickly as Ayer's Pills. Since I began taking this medicine the attacks have been less frequent, till they have ceased altogether."

Speaking of "Uncle" Tommie Donavin reminds us of how the boys used never jump on behind his buggy to ride, as the seat had nails or ticks in it, which made it rather uncomfortable to sit on. A boy might occasionally hop on it at night, but he would always get off quicker than he got on. This was why "Uncle" Tommie hardly ever had occasion to "cut behind."

The dyspeptic carries a dreadful load on his back. It seems as if he were really made up of two men. One of them ambitious, bristly and energetic; the other sick, listless, peevish and without force. The weak man weighs the other one down. The dyspeptic may be able to do pretty good work one day, and the next day because of some little indisposition in nature, he may be able to do nothing at all. Most cases of dyspepsia start with constipation. Constipation is the cause of nine tenths of all human ailments. Some of the symptoms are sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, foul breath, windy belching, heartburn, pain and distress after eating. All these are indicative of derangements of the liver, stomach, bowels, and all are caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the quickest, safest and most certain sure cure for this condition. They are not violent in their action.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Henry Rudy Had His Hand Badly Lacerated Saturday.

Henry Rudy, and employee of the Collins & Rudy Lumber Co., son of Mr. Newt Rudy, met with quite a serious accident Saturday morning that will lay him off from work several days.

He was feeding a Universal Wood-working Machine, joining two pieces of lumber, when a large splitter broke off one of the pieces and flew up.

Henry, in jerking his left hand out of the way, struck the back of it on the sharp edge of the machine, tearing the flesh off and breaking one of the fingers.

The injured member was hastily dressed, and beyond the severe pain and scare he is getting along all right.

It was reported that he had his hand caught in the machine, but that was a mistake; for if his hand had been caught in the machine it would have ever torn off, as the bits make 4,000 revolutions per minute.

FLOTSAM—JETSAM—LIGAN!

NEWLY NOTED FROM NATURE'S GREAT HIGHWAY.

The Henry M. Stanley passed down from Pomeroy yesterday at 11 a. m.

The yearling steamer will pass down this afternoon from Pittsburgh with a large trip.

The Allice Brown is coming with a tow of twenty-four empties bound for Pittsburgh.

All the towboats that have been hugging the banks with tows of empties are now en route to Pittsburgh.

The barges sunk at Kanawha Bar by the Beaver have been removed without the aid of the tugboats, and the channel is clear once more for that point.

The Rob Roy and crew, under command of a Government officer, succeeded in clearing the channel of the sunken coalboats at Merriman Saturday.

The steamer Virginia passed up for Pittsburgh early yesterday morning with the best trip of any boat that has passed this city for that point in ten years. She was loaded flat.

The oldest towboat in existence is the Hawk, rebuilt and now owned by the M. K. & L. Co. of Pittsburgh. The next oldest is the Bob Connell, owned by Huling Bros., Pittsburgh.

The rains for the past three days have been general throughout the entire Ohio and Kanawha valleys, and the river is now rising from Pittsburgh to Cairo, at some points above the rise amounting to as much as 3 inches per hour. At Pittsburgh there is a 12 foot stage, and about 12,000,000 bushels of coal are loaded in light barges, all of which will leave that port today and tomorrow. The Allegheny and Monongahela are both putting out, i. e., that from the former stream being pretty heavy and likely to give the boats some trouble. The Kanawha is rising, and all the coal that is loaded in that stream will get out, as will also a large amount of timber. This is a good thing for the coal operators, as they have quite a number of Southern contracts that have to be filled immediately.
